Mayor Finch, who took charge of mayor Finch, who took charge of the work of rescue, gave out a state-ment early tonight that he believed 35 men, women and children had per-ished. Vernice Graves, one of the first to get out of the building after the collapse, said she was sure fifty per-sons had been entrapped. It was upon these estimates that statements of the larger death list were given out at first by the authorities.

Number in Store Unknown.

Efforts to get an accurate statement as to the number of persons in the store when the walls crashed in were unavailing. Vernie Graves, said to be the only occupant of the store when the crash came, who escaped un-hurt, stated positively that fifty per-sons were in the place when the walls fell. Mayor Finch estimates the death list at 35. Other estimates are widedifferent. Smouldering ruins vented rescuers from digging far into

Reply Sent to Great Britain

SECRETARY KNOX ANSWERS BRITISH PROTEST.

DISCRIMINATION

Claims Sir Edward Grey Admits Right of United States to Grant Subsidies -A Special Commission Suggested.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Secretary Knox's reply to the British protest against the exemption of American coastwise shipping from Panama canal tolls assures the British government that domestic coastwise trade will not be permitted to extend operations into foreign competitive fields and that increased tolls will not be laid on foreign shipping to balance the remission to American ships. If Great British is not satisfied on these points, America not satisfied on these points, America proposes a special commission of adjustment.

Protest Was Premature.

Secretary Knox begins his note, which was delivered to the British foreign office through Mr. Laughlin, the American charge at London, by the flat statement that he cannot agree flat statement that he cannot agree with the British interpretation of the canal treaties, so far as they limit the freedom of action of America or infringe British treaty rights. Pointing out that the Grey note was lessed without consideration of the president's toll proclamation, the secretary states that Sir Edward deels chiefly with the possibilities of what the president might do under the canal act, whereas the proclamation has entirely whereas the proclamation has entirely changed the situation.

The First Objection.

Taking up the three objections made by the British government, Secretary Knox first discusses that which ap-plies to the exemption from tells of the government vessels of Fanama. This he declares to be a great and complete surprise to the United States complete surprise to the United States, which always had asserted without challenge that the status of the countries immediately concerned by reason of their political relation to the territory in which the canal was to be constructed was different from that of all other countries. He does not believe, therefore, that the British government intended to propose arbitration of this

The Second Objection,

In regard to a second British objection, that the Panama canal act might be thought to comfer upon the president the power to discriminate in the use of the canal in favor of all ships belonging to the United States and its citizens, even in the foreign trade, by granting them reduced tolks, the note quotes from the memorandum attached to the canal act by the president when to the canal act by the president, when it was signed, as follows:

"It is therefore unnecessary to discuss the policy of such discrimination until the question may arise in the exercise of the president's discretion." Question Has Not Yet Arisen.

As no question has yet arisen on this point, which, in the words of the existing arbitration treaty, "It may the note holds that the sug gestion of arbitration is premeture. Be-fore passing from that stage of the question, Secretary Knox emphatically disclaims entertaining any doubt as to the right to exempt American warships and other government vessels from tolls, as they are a part of the govern-ment's protective system, and it is not understood that Great Britain chal-lenges the right of the United States to protect the canal or to require an explanation of what relation the movement of a particular vessel through the canal has to its protection.

Not a Discrimination.

Thus clearing away all non-relevant objections, the note proceeds to dis-cues the British assertion that the ex-emption of United States coastwise vessels from tolls is a discrimination against British vesseis. Mr. Knox re-calls Sir Edward Grey's admission of the right of the United States to grant subsidies to its shipping generally or to any particular branches, and al-though this is "a form of subsidy" to exempt the coastwise shipping from tolls, he regards it as objectionable, as throwing an unfair share of the burden of up-keep in the canal on for-Possession of Power Not Cause of

Summarizing the British objections and commenting upon them, Secretary Knox does not deny that congress has the power through the president to violate the terms of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in its aspect as a rule of municipal law. That, he says, would municipal law. That, he says, would only become a just ground for complaint in the event that the power was used against British shipping. "It is the improper exercise of this power and not its possession" which alone can give rise to an international cause of action, remarks the secretary.

Only when complaint is made by Great Britain that British vessels actually have been subjected to unequal treatment or unequitable tolls, Secretary Knox asserts, can the question be raised whether the United States is bound by the Hay-Paunoefote treaty to bound by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty to collect tolls from American vessels, and whether British vessels are entitled to equal treatment.

ployes from great business houses and manufacturing establishments were purchased and resold by the brokers at prices far below their face value. Sold Below Face Value.

The postal laws make a crime punby imprisonment to sell any stamp issued by the government for less than its face value. Investiga-tions disclosed the fact that, in addition to selling the stamps for less than they could have been purchased from the government, the brokers knew that the stamps were stolen when they purchased them. Inquiries showed that brokers in some instances entered into a conspiracy with employes of business houses to buy at low prices upon all the stamps the clerks could steal from their employers.
